*"The Psychological
Brilliance in the Teaching of Jesus"*

Sundays Feb. 5 – 26 10 a.m.
in the Garden Room of BPC

As Christians, we all know following Jesus is a rewarding spiritual path. But current psychological research suggests this is not only good for us spiritually, but emotionally as well.

In this series Clinical Psychologist Dr. Mark Baker will explain how brilliant psychological insights in the teachings of Jesus guide us toward emotionally healthy lives. We will look at how following Jesus can produce the most effective personal relationships, how to apply Christian principles in the workplace to achieve real success and how the power of love can overcome even your greatest fears.

Contemporary psychology helps us understand how the ancient insights of Jesus contain great power for our modern lives today.
